

Moodle

Thanks to Moodle, I don't have to navigate the Los Angeles Freeway system to participate in a class. Moodle enables students from any part of the world to be part of an online learning community. Moodle allows students to collaborate and communicate easily and effectively. In order to utilize Moodle all one needs is a computer and internet connection.

The instructor organizes the Moodle interface any way he/she wants. With Moodle, the instructor can choose blocks to include on the interface. Eg. search, categories, resources, announcements, grades, etc. It's one-stop shopping; all the resources needed can be found in one place.

Within the blocks, the instructor can include activities or links as desired. For example, within the activity module the instructor can include categories such as forums, databases, or wikis. The students then enter the site and communicate via forums or create/edit wikis.
